

Originally from the vibrant city of Bombay, Chef Mandeep Saini brings with him a rich culinary heritage and over 15 years of international experience. His career began in London, where he worked in several esteemed hotels and restaurants, most notably at the prestigious The Berkeley London. It was there, in a high-pressure, multi-cuisine kitchen, that Chef Mandeep refined his skills and developed a deep appreciation for precision, flavour, and creativity.

Following his time in London — including running a successful pub — Chef Mandeep moved to Scotland to join the world-renowned Gleneagles Hotel, widely regarded as one of the finest hospitality establishments in the country. His time there not only deepened his culinary expertise but also cemented his reputation for excellence.

Driven by a vision to blend cultures on a plate, he later opened the Bombay Club at the Glendevon Hotel in Auchterarder. The restaurant, offering a unique fusion of Bombay-style Indian cuisine and classic Scottish pub fare, was met with enthusiastic acclaim. In its opening year, it was awarded Best Restaurant in Central Scotland, and has proudly remained a finalist for the last two years.

Chef Mandeep is renowned for his philosophy: "Simplicity is the best recipe." His dishes are a celebration of flavour and authenticity — approachable, honest, and always delicious. He has an extraordinary talent for transforming simple ingredients into unforgettable experiences.

In addition to running the Bombay Club, he took on the exciting challenge of leading the restaurant service at Auchterarder Golf Club, further expanding his culinary footprint in Scotland.

Now, Chef Mandeep is bringing his passion, skill, and signature flavours to Edinburgh, inviting the capital city to discover a dining experience like no other — where East meets West, and tradition meets innovation.

Get ready, Edinburgh — something different is on the menu.
